Woman's Club Department Gets Award For 1963 Cancer Clinic

The Delta Department of the Murray Woman's Club received the annual award of the Kentucky Public Health Association this morning for "the organization in the state which makes the greatest contribution to public health during the year."

The Association is holding its annual meeting at the Kentucky Hotel in Louisville.

The Delta Department was given this award for the Cancer Clinic they promoted at the Calloway County Health Department in November at which time 868 women of the city and county were given the "Pap" smear test for the detection of cervical or uterine cancer. As a result of the 868 examinations approximately 300 women were referred to their own family physicians for further examination and observation, a number of biopsies were performed, and two positive cases of cancer had surgery performed. The major accomplishment of the clinic, it was felt by the club, was the fact that the women of the city and county have been alerted to the great prevalence of uterine or cervical cancer and of the fact that this type of cancer can be detected if examination is undergone sufficiently early by means of the "Pap" test, and if cancer of the cervix is found early treatment can be given and cures effected. The women are aware of the advisability of having this test made regularly at least once a year.

The Delta Department feels that this has been the greatest contribution they have made to the educational phase of the cancer program, they having for a number of years, sponsored the work of the Calloway County Health Department.

In accepting the award for the Department this morning Mrs. Myrtle J. Wall emphasized that the undertaking would have been impossible but for the help of many, many individuals. The Calloway County Health Department com-

Conditions Set For Meet With TVA

EDDYVILLE, Ky. 478 — Lyon County Judge Francis Utley said Wednesday he will meet with Tennessee Valley Authority officials on the Land Between the Lakes re-creation project only if the press and public also are invited, and if it is permitted to make a tape transcription of the proceedings. Utley is chairman of the Tri-County Organization for Constitutional Rights, which is opposed to land acquisition procedures being used by TVA in connection with the Land Between the Lakes project.

About 25 residents of the area have been picking TVA project headquarters at Golden Pond, Ky., for the past several days.

Judge Utley and the county judges of Trigg County, Kentucky, and Stewart County, Tennessee, are scheduled to meet Friday at Kentucky Lake State Park with TVA board chairman Aubrey J. Wagner to discuss the controversy.

Utley said that TVA had stipulated that the meeting be closed to the public and to the press, radio or television representatives.

W. S. Milliken, TVA assistant land section chief, said that when he arranged the meeting, Utley had agreed to attend without, at that time, taking any exception to the arrangements.

Nursing Home Construction Is Underway

The Westview Nursing Home is now under construction on South 16th Street on a seven acre tract of land.

It will be a modern brick veneer colonial style building.

The contract was let to Earl Nanny, the successful bidder on the project, with Harry Jenkins receiving the contract for plumbing, heating and air conditioning and Dick and Dunn the low bidder on the electrical contract.

The plans and specifications for the nursing and convalescent home have been approved by the State Department of Health and the State Fire Marshall's office. The opening date will be announced later and is expected to be sometime in August. Herbert Brooks is the architect.

Costing well over $100,000, the nursing home will be highly modern, with central electric heating and air conditioning, with individual room controls.

Included in the building, which will have space for forty patients, will be a large recreation and dining area.

The home will be staffed with technical help which meets the requirements of the state health and medical services, a spokesman said.

Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

This is National Library Week.

Nine Kentucky counties have no library at all. Sixteen counties have libraries, but no bookmobile service. Three have limited bookmobile service, but no libraries.

Calloway County has a library and bookmobile service too.

Fifteen Kentucky counties have voted a special library tax to support their library, but Calloway turned it down.

The Calloway tax, of course was a victim of too many taxes coming up at the time of the election. The heavy hospital tax will probably stop any other kind of tax for some years to come.

At any rate Calloway has a good library, even with its rather shaky financial setup.

It offers many services of which you can become cognizant, only by using them. Check out a book, or record, or film or picture.

That Mocking Bird was taking his life in his hands, if he had only realized it. Moonlight the cat was all flattened out on the ground and the Mocking Bird made repeated dives at him and finally came to rest on the edge of the gutter.

It could have been because the Mocking Bird has a nest in the Blue Spruce and Moonlight was getting too close for comfort.

The Azaleas in and around Murray are showing up well this year.

The plantings at the local post-office building look particularly good.

Highlight Of Fishing Season Is The Annual Crappie Run

FRANKFORT, Ky. (Special) — One of the highlights of the "fishing year" occurs in most of Kentucky's lakes, in some of the streams and farm ponds, usually in late March or early April when the crappie takes on its usual spawning run.
This period, during which Old Papermouth lays his eggs in the shallower waters and when he throws caution to the wind in quest of a juicy meal, has provided some of the most productive and entertaining fishing in the land.

Most people have heard of the crappie run in Kentucky Lake and Lake Cumberland, with more prominence being given to the one that occurs in the shallow waters of Kentucky Lake. When the water temperatures rise to the late fifties or early sixties, crappie move from the channel areas of Kentucky Lake into the sloughs and tributaries, where they can find shallow water in which to spawn and feed.

The run will first be noted when fishermen begin to pick up greater numbers of the crappie in the mouths of the tributaries. As the water further warms, the crappie proceed up these sloughs and inlets and boys until they find the shallow water they desire. They'll hit anything as they proceed to their chosen waters, while they are in the process of laying their eggs and as they return to the deep waters.
This run usually continues from two to three weeks, depending on the weather, and the fabulous Kentucky Lake crappie fiesta attracts thousands upon thousands of fishermen, who most usually are rewarded for their pascatorial efforts with nice strings of the crappie.

This same sort of run occurs to a lesser degree in Lake Cumberland and other lakes, as the crappie react as in Kentucky Lake but because of the topography of the lake bottom most often the catches are not so great. The deeper lakes provide less spawning waters, but Mr.
Papermouth does move into the shallower areas of these lakes, and congregates around fallen tree trunks or earth slides from which they are caught in great numbers.

The tributaries of Lake Cumberland yield fine catches of these fishes although the fishermen must fish at a greater depth than at Kentucky Lake, where often the fishes are taken at depths of not more than 12 inches.

And during these forays the milling crappie will hit about anything.
The favorite food is minnows, fished from a cane pole, with the float and snker rig. Casting rods, spinning outfits and flyrods also are used to handle the minnow baits.
If a person desires to cast for the crappie he'll do all right with a small do-jig tied two to five feet behind a plunker. This rig is cast into the deeper areas of the tributaries usually and then retrieved rapidly. Flies also have produced

Racers Showing Progress, Coach Don Shelton Reports. Spring Games Set In April, May

Half way through spring football practice, Murray State College Coach Don Shelton says his squad has shown steady progress and that many of the problems facing the team are on the way to being solved.

"We have been devoting most of our time to fundamentals and trying to develop a consistent running game," Shelton said, "and at this point we feel we have come a long way toward those objectives."

Shelton had high praise for his running backs and lauded the play of fullbacks Tommy Glover and Tom Chalmers, and halfbacks John Bryant, Vic Kuba, Dennis Jackson, Terry Croon, and Wayne Wilson.

Other problem spots on the Racer team, notably center and tackle, also are showing improvement, according to Shelton. Neil Haynes and converted guard Jerry Woodall are both playing well at the center spot, and tackles George Trumbo and Charlie Mitchell are both showing vast improvement over last season.

Gilbert Hamilton, a starting tackle for the Racers two years ago, is back on the squad and is expected to make the position much stronger when he rounds into condition.

Guard John Wheeler, Ohio Valley Conference "Linebacker-of-the-Week" three times last season, is looking even better this spring, said Shelton. Other linemen to be cited by the coach were guards Dick Berry and Charles Hina, and ends Jim Biggs, Tom Cox, and Jerry Grantham.

Charlie Forrest, who played at both half and quarterback last season, is directing the Racer attack this spring and is doing a superior job, according to Shelton. Transfer Toby Thomason is a so performing well as Forrest's understudy.

The Thoroughbreds will play two intra-squad games this spring, the first at Henderson, April 26 and the second at Murray, May 1. Both games will be at night.

The squad will be divided for the games next week, at which time co-captains for next season will be elected.

Willie Mays Is Hot And So Are The Giants As Willie Proves He Likes Six Figure Pay

By GEORGE C. LANGFORD
United Press International

Watch wondrous Willie. He's playing for his $105,000.

Willie — Mays, of course — is the b-r-m-e-t-e-r for the San Francisco Giants and right now Willie is hot. So are the Giants.

Mays shouldered much of the blame for the Giants' failure to repeat as the National League champions last season. He remembers how he slugged 10 home runs in the first month of the Giants' championship year, in 1957, then slumped to a .232 batting average and only four homers in the first 30 days of the '58 season.

Willie's slump, along with his teammates', prompted Chub Feeney, the Giants vice president, to mean: "I've never seen so many guys play like they didn't care about money. Well, Willie does. And he's out to prove he deserves his six-figure salary."

— Hits Third Homer

The Giants' centerfielder hammered his third home run in two days Wednesday night to ignite a 10-run Giant spree which carried San Francisco to a 10-8 triumph over Milwaukee. Mays has driven in six runs, scored three and all of his hits have been for the circuit in the Giants' first two victories.

Milwaukee, down 10-1 after four innings, threw a scare into the Giants with the aid of home runs from former teammate Ed Bailey and Eddie Mathews. Loser Bob Sadowski and rookie Larry Kelley were the victims of the 10-run fourth, which included five walks and two wild pitches.

Former Brave Bob Shaw shut the door on a final Milwaukee rally in the ninth to protect the win for starter Jack Sanford.

Ken Boyer and Bob Gibson led the St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers; Philadelphia whipped the New York Mets, 4-1, and Pittsburgh outlasted the Chicago Cubs, 5-4, in 12 innings. Houston was idle and Cincinnati dropped a 4-3 verdict to its San Diego farm club of the Pacific Coast League in an exhibition game on the West Coast.

Senators Nip Angels

Bill Skowron's homer helped the Washington Senators to a 6-4 decision over the Los Angeles Angels in the only American League game. The Yankees' opener at New York with Boston was postponed for the second straight day because of rain and the other six teams were not scheduled.

Boyer's bases-loaded single in the eighth inning started a five-run Cardinal uprising against loser Don Drysdale in Los Angeles. Gibson, who went the route allowing nine hits, started the rally with a single. Rookie Johnny Lewis, Curt Flood and Tim McCarver followed with run-producing singles. Frank Howard of the Dodgers slugged his second homer in two nights in the ninth.

The Phils sent the Mets down to their second straight defeat at Philadelphia with three unearned runs in the eighth. Tony Gonzalez accounted for all three with a run after first baseman, Tim Lincecum had committed a two-out error. Jim Bunning, the ex-Detroit Tiger making his first start in the National League, was the winner. Tracy Stallard was the loser. Bunning went the distance.

Walks Vardon

Reliever Don Elston walked Vardon with the bases loaded two out in the 12th to hand Pirates a victory at Pittsburgh. Walk followed two intentional bases after Bob Bailey, who had hits, singled, was sacrificed to and went to third on Elston's wild pitch.

Elston's wild pitch provided Cubs with a 4-1 lead going the ninth on a three-run blast. The Pirates tied it, primarily pinchhitter Snokey Burgess' run single. The sixth Pittsburgh pitcher Roy Face, who lost the opener, won in relief.

Skowron's poke started a six-run rally in the second inning at Washington. Winner Bennie Leek, Don Blasingame and Gary Hinton contributed run-scoring hits off loser Barry Latman. Jim Freeman connected for the Angels.

Dear Abby . . .

Now Become A Man!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year old boy who is about to be drafted. I am not a coward, but I would just rather not go for two reasons. One is that I am used to my privacy and don't like to have a lot of people around me. The other is I know that I won't be able to adjust to Army life. The only way out, as I see it, is to get married, but I can't seem to find a girl. Can you help me?

LOOKING

DEAR LOOKING: Look, buddy, if every American male ducked military service for the reasons you give, our country would be a sitting duck for its enemies. Your survival would be a bigger problem than your "privacy." And your "adjustment" would be to bondage rather than to a brief hitch for Uncle Sam. Sign up and grow up. It'll do you good!

DEAR ABBY: Would you please put a word in your column explaining to people that widowed and divorced women are still addressed as "Mrs."? So many of my Christmas cards were addressed "Miss" or worse yet, no title whatsoever. This makes a housewife woman feel like "nothing."

"A MRS."

DEAR MRS.: I have written this many times in my column, and I will write it again. Once a woman has been married, unless she arranges to resume her maiden name she is never again a "Miss." P. S. Many women choose to omit either the Miss or Mrs. from THEIR correspondence — thus adding to the general confusion.

DEAR ABBY: How do you feel about a "Come and see us sometime" type of invitation?

My husband seems to think it is the hard-cooked egg slicer to cut perfectly all right. He is forever them.

dragging me places where we are not expected just because the people have said, "Come and see us sometime." Nine out of ten times it is apparent we have inconvenienced them even though they act polite, and glad to see us. My husband thinks that everyone like unexpecting company because it wouldn't bother him one bit if folks dropped by our house when the place was a mess and I had nothing to serve. But it would bother me plenty, I can't drive this point home to him. Can you?

UNNERVED: A "come and see us sometime" type of invitation should not be taken seriously. When folks really want your company, they call and invite you for a specific time.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ELINEOR: AT S. C. I don't agree that "a little gossip is nothing." A hole is also "nothing" — but you can break your neck in it.

Get it off your chest. For a personal unpublished reply, write to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Sky Pilot for Powderhorn

by Archie Joscelyn

From the novel © Copyright 1962, by Archie Joscelyn. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER I

THE MAN like the saddle had fallen silent as the afternoon waned. That seemed reasonable enough, since the rain, which had begun with the dawn, was giving way to snow; wet, cold blobs which melted as they hit, but which continued to thicken and to assume more and more of the aspects of a winter storm.

The man's face, under a week-long growth of beard, was lined both from weariness and too much belt tightening over too long a period. The horse, too, was stumbling with weariness.

To those who had known the man, such silence would have been significant. Usually he liked to sing as he rode, lifting his voice in a rich baritone, determinedly cheerful no matter how bleak the outlook.

He roused from his apathy as the horse splashed through a small stream. How long he had been riding with his eyes half closed, his usual alertness gone, he did not know. But the bar-reness of plains had given way to brush and trees, willows which fringed the creek, a scattering of cottonwoods which seemed to be drawing back from an earlier eagerness to burst into leaf.

The horse had been following an old trail, and now it swerved, blocked by the gray ridges of a rocky cliff. At Halsted's word, the horse halted willingly.

"Well, call it a day, Sinbad," he said. "I've sure let you keep going for a long day--but it's lucky you took over when I played out. This looks like as good a place as we'll find for a camp--and at least there's grass for you, along the creek."

The grass from the previous summer was almost knee-high, in contrast to the slowly greening prairie, which had barely shown growth through all of the previous summer. Then, the grass, for the most part, had been eaten to the roots by starving cattle, grubbed still further by hungry wild life. This spot was almost a haven by comparison.

He tried to form a whistle as he dismounted, almost falling as a result of the cold in his flesh and bones. No sound came, and he lifted his face to the pelted storm.

"Thanks, up there, for watching over a wandering cowpoke who's got himself strayed if not stolen," he murmured.

He stripped off saddle and bridle, leaving the pony to wander as it pleased. Sinbad was a faithful beast and would not go far--especially when ample grass was available close at hand. Not that his straying would make much difference, under the circumstances. When there was nothing left to sing about, the end of the trail was in sight.

He had had a good breakfast, there on the S & D Ranch, following a hearty supper the evening before. The trouble was that the breakfast had been on the morning of the day before, and he hadn't eaten since. Riding, he'd sighted game once, a stringy-looking jack rabbit, crouching in the lee of a clump of sagebrush. Even if he'd still had his gun, he'd hardly have had the heart to shoot it.

As he'd risen from the breakfast table, feeling almost like a man again, old Piper Driscoll had been both sympathetic and regretful.

"Sorry we can't offer you more, John," he'd said. It grated on a man, rich by range standards a year before, to look out upon empty acres. "But the way things are--"

"Sure," Halsted had agreed.
His long face was as sympathetic as his voice, for he realized that his host's troubles were greater than his own. "I know. And thanks for what you've done."

With a pair of meals under his belt, he'd been able to sing again as he rode. But the effect had worn off, even as clouds had come drifting to shut out the sun. Meals had been increasingly infrequent of late, not only for him, but for most men as well as for beasts. Which figured.

THE previous year had been a season of severe drought, following a fast to which the barren prairie attested. To cap the situation with disaster, the winter had been earlier, longer, colder than any even the old-timers could remember. Losses on most ranches had run to disastrous proportions.

In consequence, crews had been cut to the bone. Good cowhands, such as he'd prided himself on being, sought work in vain. Well, he'd been luckier than some others, in that he'd made it through the winter.

Survival had meant selling his gun and personal possessions, but he'd hung onto Sinbad. They'd gone through a lot together--and now the wisdom of sticking together had been proven anew.

With the belated coming of spring, he'd hoped for better conditions, for work opening up, a summer to thaw away the long cold.

Only it hadn't worked out that way. Hard hit cattlemen, needing cash, had sold short the previous fall; a gutted market had sunk almost out of sight, pricewise, adding to the universal ruin. Now, uneasiness cold, a late storm was almost the final straw.

Uncertain calves on wobbly legs, with weakened mothers, would fall like grasshoppers before a burst of hail. Like a robin which had ventured north too soon, Halsted had nothing to show.

Soviets Plan Spectacular This Month

By ALVIN B. WEBB JR.

HOUSTON 16P — The Soviet Union is grooming a giant, multi-stage rocket for a new space spectacular this month — possibly an orbital flight by two or more cosmonauts.

The silver rocket has been raised on a launching pad at Baikonur, a few miles east-northeast of the Aral Sea in Kazakhstan Province in the steppes of southern Russia. Baikonur is the site of the huge cosmodrome which has sent six Soviet cosmonauts into earth orbit in the past three years.

Detect "Unusual Activity"

Russia's last manned space-flight, in the summer of 1963, sent cosmonaut Valery Bykovsky and the world's first space-woman, Valentina Tereshkova, on extended voyages through space.

Informed sources said U.S. reconnaissance and surveillance systems have detected "unusual activity" in the Baikonur region. Meanwhile, Soviet tracking ships are reported steaming toward stations in the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

Russia has no counterpart of the worldwide tracking network that the United States has established to follow the course of its astronaut ships. Instead, the Soviets use highly instrumented ships to augment the string of stations that stretches generally northeastward across the broad chest of Russia.

No Advance Word

As usual, there has been no advance word from Moscow concerning the impending shot. But usually reliable U.S. sources said two distinct possibilities are:

—Another "dual flight" by two cosmonauts in separate Vostok spaceships, and an attempt to link them into a small station in the sky. Such a linkup was believed to have been one of the goals of the Bykovsky-Tereshkova voyage. If so, the attempt was ruined when Bykovsky's Vostok-S went into orbit slightly off course.

—An attempt to send two or more cosmonauts aloft in the same spaceship. If a third spaceman were rocketed into orbit aboard a second Vostok, an attempt to bring the vessels together might be expected.
